

LAURA NIERI

Born in 1963.

Independent Director of Banca Sella Holding since 2021. She is also Chair of the Risk Committee and a member of the Remuneration Committee and the Appointments Committee.

She is Full Professor of Economics of Financial Intermediaries at the University of Genoa, Department of Economics, where she is also coordinator of the Social Sciences programme at the Ianua School of Higher Education. In the past, she has taught at other Italian and foreign universities, holding numerous institutional positions.

Her research focuses on the financial system, with particular attention to banking sector regulation and the management of financial intermediaries. Her studies explore topics such as sustainability, regulatory developments and the impact of technological innovation on the banking sector. She has published numerous articles in leading national and international scientific journals, as well as monographs published by prestigious publishing houses.

She is a member of the Banking Stakeholder Group of the European Banking Authority, the Scientific Panel of the Edufin Committee and the Scientific Committee of the Foundation for Economic Education and Savings (Feduf). She is a member of the Association of Teachers of Economics of Financial Intermediaries and Markets and Corporate Finance (Adeimf), the Italian Academy of Business Economics (AIDEA) Wolpertinger Club, and AIFIRM (Italian Association of Financial Industry Risk Managers).